

RYUSHIN IAIDO

Ryushin Shouchi Ryu is an ancient martial art specializing in the art of drawing and cutting the sword. The philosophy of the Ryushin Shouchi Ryu entails cultivating the mind and conditioning the body through rigorous training for the purpose of improving the self. Ryushin Shouchi Ryu is based on a traditional swordsmanship and the forms transmitted by this style distill the wisdom, discipline and determination of a great many masters and accomplished men over hundreds of years.

In 2008, Kunikazu Yahagi Sensei became the second headmaster of Ryushin Shouchi Ryu. Under Yahagi's leadership, Ryushin is now practiced across the globe with multiple dojos in the United States, Canada, Europe, and Japan.

- Established by Kawabata Terutaka in 2006, the origins of Ryushin Shouchi Ryu Iaido can be traced to the 16th century.
- Ryushin Shouchi Ryu, means "cultivate firm and yet flexible spirit and body of the willow tree and contribute to the world through a calm mind and unfettered wisdom."
